Army and Navy News

Repairs Will Total $100,000.

PUGET SOUND NAVY YARD.

March 25.—About $100,000 will be expended on the three cruisers—the Pennsylvania, Colorado and Washington—at this yard this summer.

The Washington arrived from the quarantine station near San Francisco Monday, and repair work was started immediately.

The largest job on her is the installation of submerged torpedo tubes. The work started last summer on the ash ejectors of all three cruisers is to be completed while here.

The Pennsylvania and Colorado will arrive about April 10, and the time limit for their completion is August 10. The Washington will be the next ship to enter the drydock.

The yard captain, in charge of Ensign Parker, left Thursday for Tatooch Island, to inspect the wireless station at that place.

One Battleship Enough.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—"One new battleship annually to maintain the present strength of the navy," was the plea made by Representative Bartholdt of Missouri in the house today.

"The Japanese scare," he added, "has lost its terror, and has lost it effectually the moment we compare our own naval strength with that of Japan."

The American congress, he said, holds the peace of the world "in the hollow of its hand."

The nations of Europe, not because of their local conditions, can lead in the great campaign for peace, and for that reason America must point the way."

Remounts for the Army.

A new plan has been adopted for securing horses for the mounted service of the army. It is similar in its general scope to that in vogue in certain European countries, whereby the agricultural department superintends the breeding of horses and the army makes its purchases among those so bred.

As a result of recent correspondence between the secretary of war and the secretary of agriculture, the plan is to be put in operation as soon as the necessary details can be arranged.

The departments of war and agriculture will cooperate in the matter, and each will designate a representative to carry the plan into practical effect.

In a recent letter to the secretary of agriculture on the subject Secretary Dickinson said that the object of the war department is to find a way to be enabled to make the first offer of purchase of horses suitable for remounts, which have been specially bred for military purposes. He stated that several European countries had found it necessary to give special encouragement to the production of such horses. While the actual superintendence of breeding was done by the agricultural departments of the governments, the army horse purchasing agencies gave substantial encouragement and assistance.

"The prices heretofore paid by the quartermaster's department for remounts," said Secretary Dickinson, "are believed to be logical results of the bid system of purchasing animals, which was practically the only way in which they were purchased until within the last two years, and which still prevails to some extent, but is being less used as the remount system is developed, whereby young animals are purchased direct from owners and trained and conditioned at remount stations before being issued to troops. Contractors will bid low, and if properly guaranteed, the lowest bid must be accepted, and the horses raised with the cooperation of horse raisers with the states. The successful contractor will then buy the cheapest horses he can approach the requirements of the specifications, and endeavor to secure acceptance thereof. The quartermaster general is convinced from experience during the short time elapsed since the establishment of the present remount system that the department can purchase young horses direct from horse raisers at prices of advantage to them and to the government. He also believes that through this means of co-operation of horse raisers with the plans of your department as they appear to him can be stimulated, resulting in benefit to all concerned. His representations and the data he has submitted lead him to believe that he is correct in his views.

"If you can agree with me that arrangements are practicable similar to those in vogue in European countries, whereby the agricultural or similar department superintends the breeding of horses and the army makes purchases from among those so bred, I think that all that remains to be done is for each of us to designate representatives from our respective interested bureaus to get together and formulate plans, taking into consideration the allowance that must be made for our form of government and existing laws."
